

Features

ENDANGERED ATLANTIC STURGEON FIND A NEW NURSERY IN THE CONNECTICUT RIVER 8

After a century-long absence, sturgeon are back and spawning in the Connecticut River! Their DNA revealed a surprise.

Today's coastal landscapes and gardens can help address issues like climate change, storm flooding, water quality, and more.

14 NATIVE PLANTS AND COASTAL RESILIENCE

URBAN WETLANDS ON THE EDGE - A SALTY CONVERSATION 10

Exciting wetland research puts restored marshes on a trajectory to success.

SEA GRANT CELEBRATES 50TH ANNIVERSARY 12

Join us in celebrating Sea Grant's half century of bringing sciences to America's shores.

5 THROW THE BIG ONES BACK

Respecting your elders is always good policy, but it's also the key to managing blackfish.

RACHEL CARSON'S RISING SEA 19

Carson took readers beneath the sea and inspired a generation to care. Her message about rising seas and climate offers both warning and hope.

Of Interest

CONNECTICUT SHELLFISH INITIATIVE - PHOTO GALLERY 13

A celebration and art exhibition on Oct. 20 marked the beginning of implementation for the new plan to enhance shellfish resources.

MEET DICK HARRIS 22

Dick Harris has always loved the water and the creatures in it, and he now connects people to Long Island Sound.

